The Eyes Have It

Canvas, acrylics, string, screws, handmade recycled paper, Sharpie, kozo paper, kozo fiber, Mod Podge, glue

This project drew inspiration from both of the artists in this exhibition. The original idea was to create a loom so that students could weave with kozo fiber. The idea evolved, however, when all the projects we made (recycled paper, kozo paper, kozo eyes, paintings of water, haiku poems about water and color, tooled copper hands) proved so varied and interesting. How could we choose just one? Why not use them all!

We started with two canvases that all the students had a hand in painting. One canvas was used to showcase the tooled copper hands (inspired by Popov's Icons), and the other became the loom upon which we could weave all the other elements together. Kozo eyes became the clouds floating above a sea of poems written on our own handmade paper.

Este proyecto se inspiró de ambos artistas en esta exhibición. La idea original era crear un telar para que los estudiantes pudieran tejer con fibra kozo. La idea se desarrolló, sin embargo, cuando todos los proyectos que hicimos (papel reciclado, papel kozo, ojos kozo, pinturas de agua, poemas haiku sobre agua y color, manos de cobre) resultaron muy variados e interesantes. ¿Cómo podíamos escoger solo uno? ¡Por qué no usarlos todos!

Comenzamos con dos lienzos en que todos los estudiantes participaron pintando. Un lienzo se usó para mostrar las manos de bronce (inspiradas en los Icons de Popov), y el otro se convirtió en el telar en el que podíamos tejer todos los otros elementos juntos. Los ojos kozo se convirtieron en nubes flotando sobre un mar de poemas escritos sobre nuestro propio papel artesanal.
